In thee sacred trust
I be bestowin' our knowledge. Ne'er afore
hath sailor nor wench
set down in pen the secrets o' Sosaria
fishing. Tis only by the will o' the Order of the Dragonfish
that I do.

Tis now up to you
to protect this knowledge and earn
the trust o' the Order. This knowledge can make ye wealthy.
Guard it well.

Amberjack:

One o' these days
I'm going ta hang up me fishin' pole and
start me own brewery,
and I'm going to name
me brew amberjack.

Black seabass:

The black seabass
be a more purley
color in me personal
opinion, but it wasn'
me what named it.

Blue grouper:

These be uncommon
because most fishermen
mistake them for other
fish 'cause they ain't actually blue. This be thar natural defense.

Bluefish:

If ye be trying ta
remember where to
fish for bluefish,
jus' remember the big blue spot on their fin
that looks like a ship.

Bonefish:

This fish be havin
lots o' bones.
Like double the normal amount. I seen some
that couldn't even move!
Bonito:

Bonito be great when
smoked and dried.
Tis a favorite of Tokuno.
Cape cod:

This fish be found
off the cape.
Way off the cape.
Like, in the middle
o' the sea.
Captain snook:

Whatever sun baked
swab named this poor
devil cap'n snook
should be keel hauled!
I knew Cap'n Snook,
this be no Cap'n Snook.
Cobia:

Best to not be
confusin' the cobia
with the cobra,
the cobra be requiring
a totally different
kind o' bait.
Gray snapper:

Old sailors say that
many generations ago
the gray snapper
used to be
the blonde snapper.
Haddock:

When tha' wind's in
yar hair, the salt's
on yar lips and yar
hook's wrapped around yar pole, the
haddock be thar.
Mahi mahi:

They say that the most persuasive argument is repetition.
This might explain
why mahi mahi be so

popular.

Red drum:

The red drum is thus named because
o' the sound it makes when you thump it on the head.

Red grouper:

Red grouper be extra
good with a dalop o'
Madam Beamy's hot
sauce.

Red Snook:

This fish be found
anywhere the rest
o' the fish in this handbook be found.

Shad:

The shad be one o' me
personal favorite deep sea uncommon fish.

Tarpon:

This fella once
told me the word
'Tarpon' be derived from the word 'Tarpaulin', but I's pretty sure he was insane.

Yellowfin tuna:

The best thing about
tuna is that it tastes
like chicken that was eaten by a fish.
